1. The army corps commands are arranging annually three-day refresher courses for the divisional commander, divisional staff officers and division political officers attached to them. The Székesfehérvár corps command has been holding such courses every month recently. The courses were given by the corps commander himself, by his chief of staff and specialists brought in for the purpose. Similar courses were set up for the artillery commanders of Hungarian infantry divisions. Divisional officers from Veszprém, Keszthely, Tatabánya and Pécs appeared at Székesfehérvár for these courses.
2. In the summer of 1952, a CPX was held for the officers of the infantry division at Veszprém. It was conducted by the corps commander at Székesfehérvár. All communications units took part. Numerous Russian officers were present as observers and umpires. Maj. Gen. Házi was in charge.
3. A military chair has been added to the Chemical University at Veszprém. The university has been operating since the fall of 1951. Each week six hours of practical and six hours of theoretical military instruction are given. Theoretical instruction the course is voluntary, but in practice all students are required to take part. Officers of the division command act as instructors. During the summer the students are required to spend two months in a military camp. The purpose of this instruction seems to be to assure a supply of trained noncommissioned officers for the Army, which does not have enough. Girls are also allowed to take this instruction, and many of them do.
